DGS lights funding gets boost

The goal of funding lights for the Downers South High School football field came closer to reality recently.

John Jardon and Elmer Tietz, co-presidents of the Marching Mustangs Band Boosters presented a check for $1,000 to the Stadium Lights Committee co-presidents Roger Jable and John Fraus. The band boosters have also volunteered to help the lights committee with a future fund raising project.

The donation came from the boosters' general fund, which is made up of profits from the fund-raising the band members do throughout the year.

Kitty kudos

Downers Grove South High School is probably still aglow after first lady candidate Kitty Dukakis heaped praise upon the school during her swing through town last week.

The wife of Presidential hopeful Michael Dukakis lauded the school band, saying that, as the daughter of a conductor, she knows good music when she hears it. She then invited the band to march down Pennsylvania ave. should her husband win in November.

At the end of her presentation, Dukakis was given the requisite school jersey, which she promptly slipped on over her blouse. "I'll wear this when I do my power walking and I'll think of you," she told the cheering crowd.

And you thought politicians threw all the free clothes in the garbage.

NEW LIGHTS — John Fraus, co-president of DG South Stadium Lights Committee; Jerry Jobe of DG Animal Clinic; John Jardon, co-president of DG Band Boosters and Roger Jable, co-president of DG South Stadium Lights Committee pose on the field at DG South. Both Jobe and the DG Band Boosters donated $1,000 to fund the lights project. To date, the lights committee has raised $9,000 towards the project which will cost between $65,000 and $70,000.
